

Modes of Learning: Methods for the Classroom

with instructor Stuart Schwartzman, Ed.D.

Graduate Course Number EDUC 0595 3 Credits

This course will investigate classroom strategies for enriching teacher presentations for diverse student groups. Recent concepts of learning alternatives developed through brain research and educational literature serve as the framework for these sessions. The focus will center on the variety of learning styles that suggest the most efficient and effective methods for inclusion into curriculum. Discussions will include a left and right-brain centered approach that will engage all learners. The results will lead to better teacher-student and student-student communication in the classroom. Teachers will feel more confident solving classroom academic, as well as, management challenges, i.e.: standardized testing anxiety and embedding critical thinking within curricula.
